Set the Default Profile for Users When you are configuring a new machine, it is often necessary to set the Windows user profiles to be used by all new accounts. It would normally be necessary to configure each user profile manually after they are created, and even if some configurations are the same for all users, it's not possible to set a default profile. DefProf allows administrators to set up a default profile so that users don't need to be configured individually. All new accounts will use the settings and documents of the default user account. Instructions: Run DefProf to load the utility in the Command Prompt or PowerShell.

When prompted, specify a profile name. When the profile is loaded, all the user account profiles will use the settings and documents of the default profile. Pros: It allows administrators to create a default profile with the settings and documents of a user account. The default profile can be set with any number of users and doesn't require the user to be disabled. It does not require the use of a special tool such as Autoruns. Cons: The default profile cannot be set without a profile available to use as a template. Some users may experience issues with the program since it is a command-line utility. Bottom Line: DefProf will allow administrators to set the default user account that will be used by new users without the need to manually configure the accounts after they are created. It provides the required features to set a default user profile and doesn't require any specialized tools. DefProf

One of the most important and tedious tasks for a company that supports hundreds of computers is managing the accounts of its employees. You need to make sure that all users have a valid email address, a valid password, and that they are properly configured with the necessary software. While this is a good idea, it also presents a challenge. The reason is that new users have no configuration and every account is slightly different. To ensure that all accounts are created with the proper settings and access control, it is necessary to configure them manually. Since it is tedious to do this for hundreds of accounts, one can imagine how time-consuming it would be to do it for hundreds of new accounts. DefProf is a utility that allows you to create a new profile and make it the default for all new users. The settings can be downloaded from the internet and then installed automatically when a new user account is created. To make the profile the default for all new users, first launch the program. From there, the steps are simple. Choose which user account to work with and then type in the following command. Defprof --default The program will then download all the settings from the internet, and will automatically install them in the new user's profile. You can download a copy of the DefProf utility for free and run it directly from a USB device. The product is available from the official website and it provides a free 30-day trial version. If you would like to purchase the full version, it is available for US$75.00. If you like what you see, you can contact the support team and discuss their options for hosting a 1d6a3396d6
