There is a growing need for secure and encrypted networks which are both private and accessible from any device. Nowadays, it is something you cannot live without. In the transport-related sector, "in-vehicle" networks are fast becoming the latest trend which will surely make your life easier by automating something which is usually quite complex. To be more specific, fleets and companies are creating a virtual infrastructure that will contain all the traffic the company needs in order to perform certain functions, such as managing and transporting their vehicles. eKombu, the first "open source" solution dedicated to transport automation, has already taken the market by storm, but there is still a lot to be done. Bocoup's mobile network will make the necessary infrastructure to satisfy the enterprise needs, offering a complete solution based on small cells and a messaging system that will ensure you are always connected and able to communicate. In order to fully optimize communication flow, connectivity, reliability and security, a powerful and secure satellite network as well as a messaging system are key to the efficient operation of eKombu. Bocoup's Satellite Messaging Service is one of the first "in-vehicle" services that combines the state of the art technology and the organization's needs. Bocoup's Satellite Messaging Service With Bocoup's Satellite Messaging Service, you will be able to manage and organize all the messages created on the system and turn them into beautiful graphics within seconds. Unlike the other communication applications, which require the operator to learn a new language, eKombu needs to be used in a different way. Nevertheless, for those who have not
